

You could not live with your own failure. Where did that bring you? Thought by eliminating half of life, the other half would thrive. But you've shown me that's impossible. You're a man who thought he could live with his own failure, but he couldn't. You were a man that thought he was able to live with himself, but you've proven that's not true.